

Closed-Circuit Television System Not Fully Functional
March 3, 2011
Case #10-258

The Office of Inspector General (OIG), Office of Investigations (OI), conducted a proactive inquiry involving a contractual agreement with a vendor who was hired to install a closed-circuit television system at one of Amtrak's facilities. The vendor in question had installed cameras that were not fully functional.

Once OI requested the assistance of Amtrak's Procurement Department to rectify the problem, the vendor agreed to provide Amtrak with upgraded equipment totaling $20,576 at no additional cost to the company.
